News this week

Our crowdfunding has continued its great start. Over £1,000 more has been raised this week, taking the total so far to £11,400 from 360 generous donors.

Closing date is Wednesday 10 March.

Please give if you can afford to, and continue to share this good news with your friends.

<https://www.crowdfunder.co.uk/save-hulme-hippo> You can check the website for the latest total and to read the kind comments left by 120 supporters. One typical comment is:

“Manchester needs to save its cultural assets for all! This is a great cause.”

Laser surveys needed inside

A campaign sub-group of professionals involved in buildings (architects, surveyors, acoustics engineers, etc) recently met and they have scoped out the next practical steps that we need to follow. Their key recommendation was that the survey should include a two-dimension laser scan of each room which produces accurate drawings, but not three-dimension scans because the huge amount of data would be unmanageable. 3D would also scan all the litter on the floor.

Similarly, they recommended that the application of building information modelling (BIM) technology should not be used, based on their professional experiences gained from working on other listed buildings.

Hundreds of supporters

Two Facebook pages are associated with our campaign. The “Save Hulme Hippodrome” public page has 440 people as followers, and the “Friends of the Hulme Hippodrome” group page has 550 people as members.

And please remember we have a new Twitter account - @savehulmehip – please follow us, retweet our fantastic news, and add your voice to the campaign.

Media coverage this month

This month we have gained significant amounts of media coverage in the regional press, which has given an energy boost to the campaign. We are looking for opportunities to create and sustain national stories in the months ahead.
